If you are thinking about getting a chipmunk as a pet, it is important to do your research and make sure that you are prepared to provide the proper care. Chipmunks need a large cage with plenty of space to move around. They also need a variety of toys to keep them entertained. Chipmunks are omnivores, so they need a diet that includes both plants and animals. You should also provide your chipmunk with a regular supply of fresh water.

Chipmunks are social animals, so it is important to get them a companion. If you only have one chipmunk, it will likely become lonely and depressed. Chipmunks are also very active animals, so they need to have plenty of opportunities to exercise. You should take your chipmunk out of its cage for several hours each day so that it can run around and play.

Chipmunks are generally healthy animals, but they can be susceptible to a variety of health problems. It is important to take your chipmunk to the vet for regular checkups.
