

The Graded Word List of 52,000 Words: The 11th Thousand

The Graded Word List of 52,000 Words is a comprehensive collection of English words organized according to their frequency of usage. Compiled by Edward L. Thorndike and Irving Lorge in 1944, it has since become an invaluable resource for researchers, educators, and language learners alike. The list includes the 10,000 most commonly used words in English, as well as additional words that are considered important for vocabulary development.

The 11th Thousand is a supplement to the original Graded Word List, containing the next 1,000 most commonly used words in English. These words are progressively more challenging than those in the original list, making the 11th Thousand an essential resource for advanced English learners.

Frequency of Usage

The Graded Word List is based on the assumption that the frequency of a word's usage is a good indicator of its importance in the language. This assumption is supported by research, which has shown that the most commonly used words are also the most important for comprehension and communication.

The Graded Word List is divided into 10,000 blocks of 5,000 words each. The first block contains the 5,000 most commonly used words, the second block contains the next 5,000 most commonly used words, and so on. The 11th Thousand is the 11th block in the list, and it contains the next 1,000 most commonly used words.

Word Characteristics

The words in the Graded Word List are not only organized by frequency of usage, but also by their other characteristics. For example, the list includes the word's part of speech, its meaning, and its usage. This information can be helpful for learners who want to understand the nuances of English vocabulary.

In addition to its frequency and usage information, the Graded Word List also includes information about the words' etymology. This information can be helpful for learners who want to understand the origins of English words.

Applications

The Graded Word List has a wide range of applications in the field of education. It can be used to:

- * Create vocabulary lists for students
- * Design language learning materials
- * Develop reading comprehension tests
- * Assess students' vocabulary knowledge
- * Conduct research on language development

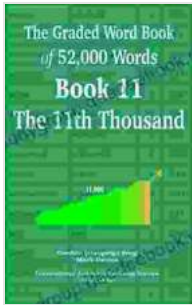

The 11th Thousand is a valuable supplement to the original Graded Word List, as it provides access to the next 1,000 most commonly used words in English. This makes it an essential resource for advanced English learners who want to improve their vocabulary and comprehension skills.
